Doug Gray

“I identify with the Texas Wildlife Association because I share in its mission to serve Texas wildlife and its habitat. At the same time, TWA works to protect all of us who know the benefit of stewarding the land for wildlife. Connection to the land is diminishing in our society, and I support TWA’s efforts to restore that connection through its program areas.

I have been personally involved in TWA’s Hunting Heritage and Conservation Legacy programs. As a volunteer Huntmaster, I have the highest regard for the Texas Youth Hunting Program, and my Huntmaster training is leveraged beyond TYHP. I also volunteer as a hunting and wildlife coach for my county’s 4-H Wildlife Project, where my TYHP training in safety and conservation is apropos. TWA’s Conservation Legacy Discovery Trunks are an invaluable resource in our 4-H Wildlife Project. Most recently, the skulls, tracks and scat found in the Wildlife Investigations trunk helped the youth develop observation and identification skills. Also beneficial to our 4-H Wildlife Project are the lessons offered through TWA’s Conservation Legacy ‘Stewarding Texas’ modules. Hands-on activities (such as the Scent Station) serve to engage youths in captivating learning experiences.”
